One of the most divisive issues this year has been equal pay for women and men. The gender pay gap ranges from 3 to 10 percentage points and can be highly unfair for women in traditionally male-dominated industries. In a new Slate article, Cathi Hanauer, a former chief executive of the Service Employees International Union, looks at how Congress can help close the pay gap and avoid unintended consequences for women. Here's a key takeaway from her piece:

Fight for equal pay, not just gender pay
