| TIPS AND TRICKS * You can use ImageMagick to convert your images to another format, such as a size that works better for viewing on the web. To do this, issue the `convert`` command from the terminal. For example, to convert a 24-bit RGB image to 8-bit grayscale, use `convert input.psd -depth 8 -colorspace Gray output.psd``. * Many of the features in Photoshop work with other features inside the program. Some Photoshop features, such as trimming or adding a border to an image, work with Select, the selection tool. --- | --- Figure 6.20 : The "no preview" button helps in previewing your images to make sure the photo looks good before you save it. Figure 6.21 : You can select one image to use as a default for all the images you create in Photoshop. You can also create other default photo templates.

Don't forget to put out your yard, garden or pond before a severe storm, using Hurricane® debris mats. Get a 20% discount when you order today. In the past, Long-term Care (LTC) facilities had to construct their own, fairly expensive, hardware to provide for the security and safety of their residents. Maybe it was a security lock on the entrance doors, or maybe it was a full security system, wired to the facility's alarm system. Then the problem of making sure the hardware was always locked, while the residents were in their rooms, was a concern. No Longer a Concern The Hurricane® products manufactured by Knee Land are becoming the modern, cost-effective solution to many of the safety and security concerns of today's elderly residents. Designed to be put into their rooms when they return from the day, the Hurricane® products help to prevent theft and provide them with added security in their rooms. While the Knee Land product line will be familiar to those that are familiar with the Long-term Care home, the video below shows just how many options are available to care providers and residents. I have two Knee Land products in my office, in my home, and in my home office. I have taken to using them during normal times of the day, and on alarm times. This product shows them at their most useful. To learn more about the products, or get a copy of the

What's New In Photoshop EXpress?

Sunday, September 7, 2017 This is my first visit to Bristol in England. Have been here once before, but much has changed in that time. Not much we can do about that but to enjoy the experience of walking around. The weather has been great, although close to the coast. The USA has been through an election so I have been keeping up with the news. Although I have not been involved in voting, I have been keeping an eye on the news. It's not much a concern for me, as I am not that political, but it appears that there are a lot of people that are. I have watched the results roll in as the polls have closed. It was more exciting in years past when elections were close, but this time, it has been a landslide victory for the candidate that has worked for these people for several years. This one person has been tireless and dedicated to these people and they clearly did not vote for Trump. I'm sure they are going to have to vote soon again. So far they have only voted in a couple of states, which is too early in a Presidential election. What I can do is watch and listen to this person speak and read some articles and still be inspired with the hope that people will not turn on each other. We are all different. We can get along. It is so obvious. Another article that I read was about an inventor who created a dating site for the elderly. He actually took it a step further to one where he would match them with other senior citizens. He died earlier this year and he was 85. We have all become distant to one another, we have all become so focused on our own little lives that we have become isolated. It is easier to be able to chat with someone from the internet, where "they" are not real. Hopefully, we are not all as disconnected as this person. I watched the Pixar movie Cars over the weekend, and enjoyed every minute of it. The clip above, and then the mini movie embedded below, titled "Let's Race," were especially entertaining. Cars is an original Pixar movie, based on the classic Disney short, "When Hare Met Hare," from the 1930's. Its fun and delightful, and the best part is that you don't have to be an animation buff to find it highly entertaining. So, I thought I would make a quick little movie —
