A single, unified legion of all that is Nintendo, the originator of the Nintendo Gamecube, is in charge of creating the most formidable army of gamers on the planet. Although we too are legion, we're only a part of that. We're The GameCube Raiders! Gameplay: The GameCube Raiders are looking for a replacement Super Mario RPG on the GameCube. Plot: And now, for the plot. Having trained in the past they may have forgotten, The GameCube Raiders are faced with the invasion of a fierce Koopa army. Forced to split up the legion up in order to thwart the invaders, the legion's equipment has been left at HQ. But once again, time is always against them and the Koopa King may already have control of the land. The situation looks grim. Character: In the mind of The GameCube Raiders, it's a question of when, not if. At the core of this game, lie three main characters: Bowser Jr., Mario and Luigi. These are the main characters of Super Mario RPG on the GameCube. Edit: We are no longer interested in Mario's or Luigi's character. The three main characters are brought to life through the 3DS's microphone. This allows for a lot of fun stuff like jousting and voice changing. 2. The theme song is pretty good. It's got that nostalgic gameplay vibe, and the chiptunes kick in hard once the battle begins. 3. The music is just plain catchy. 4. I like how the R-Symbols in the background for all the characters/plants, and the "cheating" stuff. The moment you click on the street sign to find a street name, etc. is just so good, and shows how good the game is. 5. This game is incredible fun. 6. The combat is easy to understand and very fun to play. 7. The boss battles in this game are incredible fun. They're really really really really really really hard, and have a lot of inter-connected moves going on. 8. There is an RPG side of this game, but it's really simple. 9. The bonuses are probably my favorite part of this game. 10. It's a big game. There are a lot of rooms, secrets, sub quests, i would recommend you this games for the gamepad fan because they are all really good but if you dont like them so much as the mouse one, theres the mouse pads for you which i recommend. First off, a 4 star product is of little value to a product that only has 2 stars. PixelPuzzles2: Birds The Price: $6.99 The Price and Formats: $6.99 Game: Play the game using the on-screen mouse to move each piece. Use your on-screen cursor to select and drag pieces around. Controls: On-screen mouse. Plot: Puzzle master Ivan takes you on a bird-watching adventure, as you combine the shapes of different bird species to create ornithological art and earn the bird of the day award. Gameplay: As in the previous game, your goal is to create one (yes one) large picture using the right combination of pieces. Click pieces to move them around, and when you have moved all the pieces to create a picture, simply tap the right mouse button. Soundtrack: Overall: I just can't seem to get over the fact that this game lacks music. I'm soooooo used to having a soundtrack to fall asleep to, but no matter how long I sleep, the Tingle Bells song never stops in my head. Sure, the Taps, Rains, Rainbow Parade, and Snow Patrol songs are cute, but they just can't keep me awake. Why do video games need to have music? Sure, there are some games that do have decent music, but most have the theme song that will be playing in your head while you sleep. F-Puzzle - Seriously, look it up. Overall: This is the most relaxing game I've ever played. This game will make you want to spend a weekend watching birds and solving puzzles. I highly recommend this to anyone who wants a relaxing time-waster. Graphics: Is this game pixel perfect or not? Story: Never go on an adventure with a mousepad. Gameplay: Very fun and relaxing. Soundtrack: Umm... Overall: I would give this game 10 stars, but with a 5 I just cant do it. This

What's new:

Sampler Soundtrack Sampler is the sixth EP by American grunge band Soundgarden, recorded and released on March 29, 1994. It was the last album that band recorded with Chris Cornell before his death in 2017. The album was mastered by Andy Wallace. It is the only album to feature Chester Bennington and Corey Taylor of Slipknot as guest vocalists on "Hunger Strike" and "State of Shock".

Background After the release of their previous album "King Animal", Soundgarden was in the middle of a New York tour with Fugazi and Meat Puppets. Chris Cornell was sporting a full beard, cut in the style of Kurt Cobain, inspired by music that he was listening to in the tour bus. In an interview with Jon Wiederhorn in December 1993, Cornell claims to have hated the record, calling it "the worst fucking record I've ever fucking heard. I wouldn't even listen to it, I just wanted to cut it, burn it, find a FUCKING FIRE EXTINGUISHER and smoke it. When I'm driving my car and I stop for gas - I won't go to the gas station but I'll just cruise through town and kill myself with my kids in the back seat - that is how much I hate it."

Around this time, Cornell was also working as a recording engineer and producer as well as a drummer in a band called Chocolate Genius, formed by his friend Mark Pritchard, who was the drummer for Mr. Mister at the time. After recording a demo at Pritchard's apartment, Pritchard applied to Lollapalooza to see the band, but failed to receive a response. While halfway through the Soma tour, on March 15, 1994, Cornell suffered his first bout of psychosis, which was being treated with medication. During his next show in Los Angeles he noticed his friend had left his bike at the concert. After realizing it was a

"messy proposition" to bring the bike back, he decided to keep it, calling it "an act of profound kindness." After the tour, Chris heard that his friend Danny Goldberg, who had been managing a band called Tad, sent a demo to his label. Cornell wrote to Danny in hopes of having his record released in the same manner as the box set Louder Than Love, after hearing that band's record label, SST Records, no longer existed. One month later, Goldberg sent Chris a copy of the handwritten letter that Danny

The haunting music and mysterious black mist shrouded the walls of a maze-like station. A place you dared not leave unless you had a real job. A place for jobless people to stay and find a way to survive on their own. This station was named Skyhill, the haunted station. A scientist's report was printed on the walls of the station, as well as signs that were used to guide people through the area: - This way for the criminals - This way for the immoral - Don't ask for police help unless you really need it. But there was no hope for the station's guests. It appeared that there was no escape from what had been fated to happen. An atmosphere of anxiety and fear prevailed. The sweet music hidden in the sounds of a train sliding slowly on the tracks and the shaky glass walls that seemed to vibrate with the rhythm of the dizzy guest. Soon the station would be hit by a burst of panic; the beacon of light that could lead the people there would be extinguished. No way. Even if you were a criminal, it would be difficult to leave this place. Anna's Track: Based on the story of "Skyhill: Black Mist", I composed a dramatic and creepy melody with a theme song title, "The Mist". By using the mysterious mood of "Skyhill: Black Mist", I tried to make this great sound come to life with my music. Anna's Preview: This song has a special atmosphere that will make you scared to the core! Features: ☐The gloomy atmosphere of the game is recreated perfectly with the music. □A chilling melody with a dramatic and ominous tone is added to this music. About This Game: Meet Pauline. One day, she lost her family to a horrible accident. A man took pity on her, giving her a job that no one else wanted - to slaughter living things. Do you want to help her? “Know Your Enemy” will be released in 2019. Let's Play: ■About the sound recording■ I used a sound recorder instead of a microphone. ■Details of the sound recording■ Volusion is a free platform-based service operated by Apegi Sound.
