to download gmod you have to register for an account on moddb. once you have successfully logged in you will be given a number for download. this is the download link for the file. this file is a zip file containing the gmod program you need to install. you need a program that can unzip the file, such as winzip. if you get the message, "steam: 0x80240000 arre alles in ordnung." then all of the non-steam games you have installed are working fine and you dont have to do anything special to run them. your steam library may have been upgraded to the steam 2.0 beta, which is essentially just a few bug fixes and some new features. if you have issues, try updating your steam client. (you can go to steamcommunity.com/app/ to download and install the latest version). if you already have steam installed on your computer, you can skip this step. if you dont have steam installed yet, you can visit the steam website and download the steam client. once you have downloaded the client, launch it and click on the big "install" button. make sure your windows 8.1 installation is up to date (its always a good idea to do this, as newer updates can fix some problems that others may have had). if youre running windows 8, you can skip this step. youll need to download an iso for windows 8.1. the windows 8.1 iso file can be downloaded from the microsoft website. after you have the iso file, you can use a virtual machine such as virtualbox to make a copy of your current windows installation on your computer. if youre running a mac, you can download it from apple.com
